DWD announces new Deputy Commissioners for Human Resources, Employment Growth, and General Counsel

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. – Today Indiana Department of Workforce Development Commissioner Ronald Stiver announced the names of new Deputy Commissioners for Human Resources, Employment Growth and General Counsel.

Robyn Whalen has been named the agency's Deputy Commissioner for Human Resources:

Prior to her appointment, Whalen served as Vice-President of Training and Development for Integra Bank in Evansville, IN. In her new capacity, Whalen will oversee all Human Resource related issues for DWD.

Whalen graduated from Upper Iowa University and also earned her PHR and HRCI certifications.

Maureen Weber has been named the agency's Deputy Commissioner for Employment Growth:

Prior to her appointment, Weber practiced law for Barnes and Thornburg. In her new capacity, Weber will oversee Unemployment Insurance tax and benefits functions for DWD.

Weber graduated from Georgetown University, where she earned her Bachelor of the Arts and Law degrees.

Teresa Melton has been named the agency's Deputy Commissioner and General Counsel:

Prior to her appointment, Melton practiced law for Baker and Daniels, serving as an employment and litigation attorney. In her new capacity, Melton will oversee all legal issues and activities for DWD.

Melton graduated from IU, earning her Bachelor of Science in Business and Accounting before graduating from Indiana University School of Law.
